Join Matt Maris from Local Historia for an evening of local history. James Munks was executed in Bellefonte by hanging in January of 1819 for the murder of Reuben Guild. This particular crime, and subsequent confession captured a sensational saga that not only drew many to his execution, but also many more to read and write about the fate of James Munks for years to come.

No registration necessary.

Did You Know...

Schlow has a new public computing and printing system?

We are pleased to announce CASSIE, a new public computing and printing system made by library people for library users. This low-cost, low maintenance system replaces our Useful system, which no longer supported updates for common browsers. CASSIE offers patrons a familiar computing experience and also offers expected features on the technical side that allow both patrons and guests to use the Internet and print to the library's printers securely. As in the past, card holders and visitors may have up to two hours of computer time per day.

Printing also just got a heck of a lot easier and more secure with the introduction of SPOT Global Print. An easy to install application for your smartphone, computer, or tablet, SPOT appears in print menus as any local or home printer would. Don't bother replacing that toner cartridge, send your prints to Schlow from anywhere! Your print jobs are available to be printed for 24 hours. Schlow offers both color and black and white printing for a small fee.

What do you love about working at Schlow?

I love working at Schlow because I get to work with an incredible team to serve the community while being surrounded by books!

What's one hobby you'd love to get into?

I would love to get into gardening. It would be great to be able to grow flowers for arrangements and fruits/veggies to eat. I would also like to get back into making sourdough bread.
